

Intensive Human Rights Program for School Board Leaders

In Winter/Spring 2021, Osgoode Professional Development (OsgoodePD) delivered a program focused on anti-Black racism and anti-Indigenous racism. The program received overwhelming positive feedback from school board leaders.

OsgoodePD is pleased to announce the following new offerings in the Intensive Human Rights Training Program for School Board Leaders. These programs are designed for trustees, directors of education and board senior leadership.

The 2023 program will consist of two half-day, live online sessions. Upon completion of both sessions, you will be eligible to receive a confirmation of attendance and participation.

Our world is no stranger to the outcomes of hate and discrimination. From WWII to the present day, the lessons to be drawn from hate are clear. This session will provide a foundational understanding of manifestations of hate and discrimination relevant to Ontario's publicly funded school boards. Participants will gain a deeper understanding of hate activities as well as an understanding of the impact of hate activity on students, staff and school communities.

The program will engage participants in discussions about how school boards can identify, prevent, and address discrimination and hate. The program will build on participants' practical skills to identify and address discrimination and hate activities (Draft agenda - please see reverse side).

Disability Rights in Public Education

Established in the early 1980s as a part of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, also as a protection in the Ontario Human Rights Code, disability rights are an everyday part of publicly funded education. This program will provide school board leaders and trustees with a foundational understanding of disability rights in publicly funded education. Participants in the disability rights program will learn from human rights experts regarding unconscious bias specific to ableism, protections from discrimination under the Human Rights Code, how discrimination on the basis of disability manifests in schools and classrooms, and emerging issues in special education.
